Check out this introduction from Chops Barbershop – a recent addition to the great collection of South Whidbey businesses:

Dear Langley,

There's a barbershop in town! I am owner, Diana Phillips-Settlemyer, and I would like to take this opportunity to share with you some of the journey that brought me here and reciprocate the resounding welcome shown to me since I opened up.

I began barbering in my hometown of Bainbridge Island, Washington in 2007. After a few years learning the business of barbering, I opened a barbershop in a turn of the century building in a beautiful wheat farming town in eastern Washington. I renovated the space which had been shuttered for years and proudly hung my shingle. I did not know a soul. I knew exactly nothing about bookkeeping or small town politics. All I knew was barbering and I found a community that needed a barber. Business entrepreneurship requires a mixture of courage, crazy, and skill; in that order. I loved business ownership and I loved my membership in the community but I longed for home and when the opportunity arose I sold my business and moved back to the Puget Sound.

For the last 4 years I have been barbering at Jim's Barbershop in Port Townsend where once again, I became a part of a community in ways only a barber can; I watched kids grow up and move off to college, I watched families grow and recede, I shared in the joys and pangs of the people in my community. The passion I have for my community extends beyond the success of a local business or a great haircut.

By opening this barbershop, I am not just asking for your support, I am humbly asking you to let me into your knit, to become a part of your Langley family. I cordially invite you in to Chops Barbershop, located in downtown Langley, for a great, quick haircut for the whole family at an unbeatable price. Together we can build a stronger local economy and a closer community, one haircut at a time.

Walk-in Tuesday through Saturday, 10:00-5:00

Sincerely yours,

Diana Phillips-Settlemyer and family – Chops Barbershop
